

THE SEX TORMENT OF A BUSMAN

George and Jeanette

BUS DRIVER George Miller fell in love with his clippie and married her.

But now George wants to be known as Karen and is waiting for a sex change operation.

And his wife Jeanette, who had been married before, is now seeking a divorce.

At his home in Glasgow's south side, George, 36, said last night: "Since I was a teenager, I have felt like a woman trapped inside a man's body.

"I have been living a lie and now I want to be honest with myself."

Jeanette, 48, said: "I'm glad everything is now out in the open. George has agreed to move out as soon as he finds a flat."

CLOTHES

Jeanette said the first few months of their four-year marriage was perfect.

"Then one day a friend phoned and said George had been seen in the street wearing one of my outfits.

George's hormone treatment starts next month. But the full sex change — including an operation—could take up to five years.

He said: "Of course I feel very sorry for Jeanette—she has gone through torture.

"I am just living for the day when George no longer exists."

Bowing out

TWO young East Germans have made a daring Robin Hood-style escape over the Berlin Wall.

Reports last night said they shot a wire over the wall with a bow and arrow. An accomplice in the West fixed it to a rooftop and they rolled across dangling from a wheel.

"George confessed that he wanted to live his life as a female and I gradually learned to live with the situation.

"Now I don't mind if he wears a dress as long as he doesn't touch my clothes. He now has his own wardrobe with his collection of outfits."

SEMMIT MEETING

A thousand male government workers paraded in their underwear around India's capital, New Delhi, yesterday, protesting at poor quality homespun uniforms issued to honour the wishes of Mahatma Gandhi.
